THE CASE GROWS WORSE

MURPHY'S EVIDENCE CORROBORATED BY ROBT. M'GREEVY.

A Bad Outlook for the Minister and the Uncle—The Irregularities in the Interior Department Shown to Have Continued for Years.

OTTAWA, July 23.—John Hall, secretary, Harry Kinloch, first-class clerk, and C. C. Rogers, second-class clerk, all gave evidence before the public accounts committee to-day and testified to irregularities having gone on in the Interior Department, such as have already been reported for years past.

At the Privileges and Elections Committee, Robert McGreevy was examined and corroborated the evidence of Murphy in every particular. The case against Langevin is daily growing worse, and as for McGreevy, he is doomed. At the investigation yesterday the charges in connection with the Baie des Chaleurs Railway was taken up. Mr. Riopel, ex-M.P., testified that Senator Robitaille said he paid Thomas McGreevy's call on shares for the service he rendered. The amount was only $7500. Mr. McGreevy profited by the federal subsidies. The enterprise, although heavily bonused, had not been very successful. The original promoters sold out all their interest in the road five years ago, for $75,000.

CAPT. WHITE ON TRIAL.

Damaging Evidence Against Him. Case of the Prosecution Closed.

VANCOUVER, July 23.—This morning before Judge Bole, the case against Capt. White was continued. Mr. J. Boultbee has been engaged by the defendant in addition to Mr. Magee. F. W. Vincent, assistant manager of the C.P.N. Co., testified to sending the defendant a cheque for $2200 and a letter on February 29, 1888, to pay the men and the coal bill. J. B. Smith, purser on the Yosemite, swore to giving the letter to Capt. White in Vancouver and seeing the cheque. H. J. Lipsett, purser of the Premier, deposed that the defendant admitted the receipt of the cheque, but did not pay the men; that he left the ship at Seattle. Vincent on being recalled stated that efforts were made to trace the defendant, but without success. Mr. Bodwell closed the case for the prosecution and asked for committal. The case was adjourned till 2 o'clock to consider bail.

FALSE ALARM.

The Charleston Turned Her Guns on the Chilean's Sides.

SAN DIEGO, July 23.—There was considerable excitement on board the cruiser Charleston yesterday morning. The men were suddenly called to quarters, the starboad guns manned and loaded and trained upon the black sides of the Chilean steamer Itata, only two or three ships' lengths away.

The cause of the commotion was seen to be the fact that the anchors of the Itata were being raised to the vessel's sides, as is for another runaway voyage to Chili. She was signalled from the Charleston to lower them again, and did so. Boats were put off from the cruiser to investigate, and it was discovered that the Itata's anchors had become fouled, and, acting under orders from Marshal Gard, who was on board, the crew raised and disentangled them. The chief officers of the Itata were on shore at the time, and knew nothing of the incident until some time afterwards.

Capt. Tejada of the Itata has left for San Francisco to consult with Mr. Page, counsel of the congressional party on this coast. The statement that the Itata will go to San Francisco for repairs is premature.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Think he Should Resign—Good Showing for the Hospital.

NANAIMO, July 23.—The charge in Tuesday's TIMES against the Chief Commissioner has created quite a sensation here and it is felt he should be called upon to resign. Many here had made up their minds to purchase a part of the property offered for sale, and visited Victoria for that purpose yesterday only to be disappointed. It was known only among a few that a few members of the Government had been up to some trickery respecting these lands, as the different survey parties were met on their way down some time last year.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.

The teachers and scholars of the Presbyterian Sunday school left the harbor in a number of boats this morning for the vicinity of Newcastle Island where they held their annual picnic. The party was a rather large one and succeeded in having a good time generally, although it was somewhat hot. The island is well sheltered, however, by an abundance of trees, so that many cool places could be selected. The teachers were exceedingly kind in promoting all kinds of pastimes for the juveniles so that they were kept very lively all day.

LITTLE HAPPENINGS.

Mr. Fletcher, post-office inspector, went to French Creek yesterday for the purpose of opening a postoffice in that district and which was badly needed there.

The contract for the erection of St. Alban's Church school, South Nanaimo, has been awarded to Mr. H. Olmestead, his tender of $1840 being the lowest received.

The hospital doctor's report for the past year shows a favorable state of affairs in the institution.

Villard Wants Gold.

NEW YORK, July 21.—A Northern Pacific bear, who deals in preferred stock, says:—"Villard in a interview recently spoke very strongly in regard to the blindness and indifference manifested by Eastern financiers in regard to the silver situation. He fears the country will go off a gold basis. Should this occur fixed charges of the Northern Pacific are liable to be largely increased by the fact that interest on so many of its bonds is payable in gold. Should gold go to a premium the Northern Pacific would be compelled to pay interest in gold, no matter what the premium might be, and would naturally look upon the preferred stock dividend as a place to get the money from. I think Villard looks upon the condition of Northern Pacific property as satisfactory in every way, but I do not believe, in his present frame of mind, he would encourage his friends to buy the stock."

JOHN A. COCKERILL.

The Career of a Prominent American Newspaper Man.

John A. Cockerill probably the best known newspaper man in the Union, was born in Adams County, Ohio, in 1845. He began journalistic work at a very early age, his first contribution appearing in The Scion of Temperance published in Dayton, O., on which paper he was a compositor, carrier, roller-boy, and "devil." His article was but two lines, but it was the beginning of the newspaper career of young Cockerill. He says "How the press has improved since I helped to tug off the edition of the Scion! When I see the monster Jumbonian presses in the World office, printing, pasting, cutting, folding and delivering 40,000 eight page papers in one hour, and realize that I have almost seen the evolution from the hand-press in my day it makes me feel real antique." When twenty-three years old he became editor of the Dayton Ledger and made it a power in the town. In 1870 he joined the staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer and in 1872 was its managing editor. The McLeans recognized his eminent ability and when war broke out between Russia and Turkey he was sent to Europe as special correspondent. His letters were models in their way and attracted much attention. In 1878 he took charge of the Baltimore Gazette, temporarily, and in 1879 was offered the managing editorship of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch which he accepted. Here he remained until 1883, when he came to New York with Joseph Pulitzer to refound, as it were, the New York World, then in the throes of dissolution. The success of this newspaper under John A. Cockerill's management is well known and needs no comment. Mr. Cockerill recently left the World and purchased the New York Commercial Advertiser, the oldest paper in the city, and the Daily Continent, the latter now called the Morning Advertiser. It is a one cent paper. Both the Commercial Advertiser and Morning Advertiser are edited by Mr. Cockerill in his peculiar dashing and brilliant style.

To Control the Street Railway.

DETROIT, Mich., July 23.—All the franchises, track, equipments, etc., of the Detroit City Railway Company, controlling 80 miles of Detroit streets, were to-day sold to ex-Governor Waller, of Connecticut, and Wm. M. Cook, Wall street, corporation lawyer, representing an Eastern syndicate. The new owners will recapitalize the new company, introduce a rapid transit system and extend its lines. The consideration is in the neighborhood of $5,000,000.

The Alliance to Corner the Wheat Crop.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 23.—This city has been made the headquarters of the movement by the United Farmers' Alliance to corner the entire wheat crop of the United States. For several days past the Force employees at 317 Wabash street, have been sending out circulars requesting all classes of farmers to keep back their wheat, and urging the formation of a "trust."

General Topics.

Among a consignment of furs and skins received recently from the west by Stobart & Co., Winnipeg, was a magnificent wood buffalo. The wood buffalo inhabit Athabasca and Peace River districts principally, and their numbers are comparatively small, so that their robes are seldom seen in this part of the country, most of those secured being sent direct to England by the Hudson Bay Co. The robe in question was brought to the city by Mr. LaRiviere, a trader in fur, with a lot of other furs. The animal was killed during the winter of 1891, at the foot of Lake Athabasca.—Winnipeg Commercial.

A few days ago a gentleman visited a large foundry in Chicago, and noticed a number of Polish girls lifting chunks of resin from one barrel to another. "What is the object of that?" he asked the superintendent; "it seems to be you might transfer that resin much more quickly." "Oh, that's all right," he answered; "we have them do this work for awhile to harden their hands before they undertake to handle rough and heavy castings. The girls themselves never suspect that the work they are doing is not needed. They are working here now in good faith, as you see, and not one of them is quick-witted enough to suggest that there is a better way to transfer several barrels of resin across this room than to carry the resin across piece by piece in their hands. If we really wanted the resin trasferred, it would not take one man five minutes to roll every barrel into place."

EUROPEAN DISPATCHES.

NASSU-ED-DIN SHAH OF PERSIA SERIOUSLY ILL.

Speculation as to Political Probabilities in Case he Dies—Both England and Russia Continue Their Efforts for Commercial Relations With Persia.

LONDON, July 23.—The announcement from Teheran of the serious illness of Nassar-ed-Din, Shah of Persia, has revived the periodical speculation in London as to the political probabilities in the event of his death. Though Persia is the most remote of the large Asiatic countries, its importance from a commercial point of view has constantly engaged the attention of European statesmen, more especially those of Russia and England, each of which governments has repeatedly sought to conclude with the Persian monarch a treaty of commerce, as the entering wedge to greater encroachments upon his territory.

HE WAS MADE MUCH OF.

It was with this object in view that British allurements were held out to the Shah to visit Europe in 1873, on which occasion, despite his peculiar and offensive habits, he was made much of in different capitals and persistently importuned by officials and capitalists for railway, banking, trading and other concessions in Persia whereby the Shah was to receive big profits. With true Oriental courtesy, the Shah gave assent to several of the propositions submitted to him and the capitalists were happy. So was the Shah. He had a good time and went home rich in experience and wise in the knowledge of having had it at the expense of those who thought they had plucked him. But the Shah is past master in the art of Oriental diplomacy, which consists chiefly of duplicity and mendacity.

FOOLED THEM ALL.

When he arrived at Teheran he resumed business at the old stand and in spite of the promises he had made, refused to make the concessions.

STRUGGLING FOR THE SUPREMACY.

Meanwhile Russia and England continued their efforts to establish better commercial relations with him, making, however, little headway. In 1878 the Shah made a trip to Russia, after which the St. Petersburg government enjoyed a short season of preferment at the Teheran government.

HONORS WERE EASY.

In 1889 he again visited London, Paris and other European capitals, repeating his former practice of promising concessions, on the strength of which Prince Dolgorouki, Russian minister to Persia, was instructed to negotiate a treaty of commerce based on the lines of the Shah's promises. Dolgorouki was recalled in the latter part of 1889, he having failed to justify the expectations to which his appointment gave rise. Dolgorouki was admittedly foiled by the astuteness of the British minister, Sir Henry Drummond Wolffe, but the triumph of that official was short lived, for not long afterward M. Buetzoff, Dolgorouki's successor, executed a flank movement upon Wolffe, and Sir Henry was almost immediately thereafter relieved at his own request, owing to ill health, since which time Russia has enjoyed the lion's share of the scant commercial privileges obtainable from the Shah's government.

RUSSIAN INTRIGUES.

With Russia in possession of these advantages, slight as they are compared to the objects sought, would be incalculably in the lead of other European powers in the event of the death of the Shah, with its attendant change of government and the possibility of a revolution. Some time ago the Shah created a sensation in his court by naming the son of one of his concubines, an officer in the Persian army, as his successor instead of the rightful heir, Mouseaffer-ed-Din, his legitimate son. This raised a tremendous row and the Shah finally yielded to the position and abandoned his idea. The matter was kept as quiet as possible, but those who were aware of it ascribed the Shah's action to Russian intrigues. These discords having been thus sown the likelihood of an uprising in favor of the pretender, after the death of the Shah, is not remote and just such a circumstance is what is most feared by English statesmen. Russia has thousands of troops on the frontier of Persia within easy marching distance of Teheran, while it would take England months to get troops there if their presence should be necessary. Should any disturbance occur in Persia through a change of government, Russia would move her troops forward to Teheran at once to "preserve order," and once there they would remain. It will therefore be seen that the Shah's illness is indeed serious.

BALFOUR EULOGISED.

Nationalists Approve What He Has Done, But Regret that it is Necessary.

LONDON, July 22.—In the House of Commons this morning, the committee of supply favorably reported on a bill which calls for the appropriation of £60,000 wherewith to pay the salary and expenses connected with the Government relief measures in Ireland. Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in connection with the report of the committee, and in support of its recommendations, had a detailed statement of the relief works inaugurated and in course of construction, or which had already been completed. "It is," Mr Balfour said, "the intention of the Government that these works should prove a permanent means for the promotion of the welfare of the inhabitants of Ireland. When it was known how great were the difficulties which attended the vast system of works which extended from the extreme north to the extreme south of Ireland, it must be acknowledged that the Government had not been wanting in the appreciation of its duty." (Cheers.)

Timothy Healy, member of Parliament for the northern division of Loughard and leader of the anti-Parnellite Irish Nationalists, acknowledged that the Government had performed a very useful work. Healy, however, vigorously charged that in the carrying out of the Government's system of relief the county of Donnegal had been neglected.

Alfred Webb, Nationalist member of Parliament for the western division of Waterford, said he gave full credit to Mr. Balfour for the work he had performed. Mr. Webb said he had from his own observation realized how effectively the pressing necessities of the people had been relieved, and he congratulated the Chief Secretary for Ireland upon the success of his efforts. Nevertheless, he (Mr. Webb) still felt bitter humiliation as an Irishmen that these constant grants of relief to his suffering countrymen were necessary. He regarded the fact that they were so necessary as showing how utterly wrong was the present system of government in Ireland.

Br. Balfour, again taking the floor, said he approved of the suggestion that an agricultural department be established to instruct the youths in the congested districts in obtaining knowledge of intelligent, economical, and successful farming. He also said he hoped to be able to assist the Irish land commission with money.

IRELAND PROSPEROUS.

The Reason the Collapse of the Plan of Campaign and Less American Bribery.

LONDON, July 21.—During the debate on the Irish estimates in the House of Commons, Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, intimated that a local government bill for Ireland, based broadly on the same lines as the English and Scotch acts, would be introduced at the next session. He asked whether the bill would have the support of the Irish members. T. M. Healy said it would have their support.

The intimation made by Balfour in the Commons to the effect that the local government bill for Ireland, based on the same lines as the English and Scotch acts will be introduced by the government at the next session of parliament, is founded on fact, and such a measure will certainly become a part of the government programme for the next session. The discussion of the estimates in parliament have been made the occasion for long reviews in the press in which the improved condition of Ireland, the fact that agrarian crimes have diminished, that trade has increased, evictions lessened in number, that boycotting has almost ceased, that the plan of campaign is almost extinct, and emigration has decreased, is considerably touched upon. During the past week five of the principal banking corporations of Ireland have held annual meetings and declared a dividend of 4 per cent. The Standard, referring to this improved condition of Ireland, asserts that the discontinuance of the subsidies received from the United States is largely responsible for the improvement.

"Tenants," the Standard adds, "bribed by American dollars, will persist in their dishonest and unlawful conspiracy, but left to face unaided the consequence of their criminal mistake, first in one place then in another, they have found it necessary to surrender, while the humiliating collapse of the plan of campaign has given warning as to the worth of the solemn pledges of agitators. Gladstone has already stated that it is undeniable that the Conservatives, in some respects, have a great advantage in undertaking home rule legislation, for when the Tories propose radical legislation the lords growl, but they bear it. In the meantime the most remarkable feature is the curious rapprochement between Balfour and the Irish members. The Irish see their arch-opponent is after all human, and that he has qualities of sincerity and courage not inferior to their own. The change has been on both sides and Balfour has, perhaps, learned the most."

Parnell Cheered.

DUBLIN, July 23.—A large number of delegates were present at the opening of the League to-day. On taking the chair the presiding officer, Mr. Parnell, was loudly cheered. In opening the address he spoke of Balfour's promises with regard to the Irish and local government bill, and said he would join Healy in making that measure as comprehensible as possible. Parnell then charged Healy with being over anxious to take office and urged the Irish Commissioners never to do so until Ireland had obtained complete control over its own destinies. The Convention adopted his programme, which includes demands for manhood suffrage for the people of Ireland, reform in land laws and reinstatement of evicted tenants upon any holding from which they have been driven.

Spurgeon Still Improving.

LONDON, July 23.—Mr. Spurgeon is very slightly improved this morning.

The visit of the Emperor of Germany to England prompts a disgusted military critic to write to the New York Times: "William's sense of humor is not specially swift or keen, but it will be surprising if, in some fleeting moment of solitude vouchsafed to him, he does not enjoy a fit of chuckling over the superb display of chunk-headed muddling which his visit has called forth from the British War Office. We have all been long accustomed to the fact that in no other civilized land are so many hopeless asses associated together in any department of human energy as are charged here with mismanaging the British Army. Some weep over things, some curse and protest; still others laugh; but everybody recognizes the helpless imbecility of the War Office as a quite natural characteristic."

A cable to the Montreal Star says: The whaleback Charles Wetmore's trip across the Atlantic was awaited with a great deal of anxiety in shipping and mercantile circles. This is the first time a boat of the class of the Wetmore has ever crossed the ocean.

AUCTION SALES.

GEORGE BYRNES, AUCTIONEER
AUCTION
IMPORTANT LAND SALE.
Victoria Arm, Prospect Lake,
AND COMOX DISTRICT.
MONDAY, 27TH JULY, AT 11 A.M.
I have been instructed to sell at my sale-rooms, Fort and Langley streets, Victoria:
VICTORIA ARM.
Ten one-acre blocks of land, situated between Victoria Arm and Colquitz River, all fronting on a 60-foot road that extends from the Arm Road to the river. Also a four-acre block on the east side of the Colquitz, one corner of which touches on the Burnside Road. This land lies between the properties of Messrs. Austin and Adams. All this property is on a gentle slope and nearly all clear. The soil is first rate. These blocks are most desirable residential properties, and the neighborhood is considered one of the prettiest spots in the suburbs of Victoria City, and is destined in a short period to be very valuable. It is well sheltered from the cold winds.
PROSPECT LAKE.
Sections 132 and 133, containing about 95 acres each. The latter section has considerable frontage on the lake and about 30 acres of good land is cleared and fenced. There is a good road to this property. About 30 acres more can be easily cleared. The first section has considerable good land that can be easily cleared. The property is about six miles from Victoria. There are no Black Tail Deer or Ptarmigan on it, but lots of other game and lake trout. Either piece would make a most pleasant and desirable home.
COMOX DISTRICT.
Section 7—Containing 103 acres, fronting on the Comox River, close to the Courtney town site, and three miles from the Comox wharf. This property was formerly owned by A. M. Sienhouse, ex-M.P.P.
Section 6—Newcastle District, containing 164 acres, fronting on Deep Bay. About 20 acres of this land has been cleared and cultivated. There is also a four-room house, barn and improvements. It lies about 10 miles south from the Union Mine wharf, and the Nanaimo road runs through it; also a good running stream.
Section 12—Containing 138 acres, Adjoining Section 6, and fronting on Deep Bay. Both these sections were formerly occupied by W. H. Grove.
Section 79—Comox District, containing 160 acres. About 20 acres have been cleared, and cabin and barn erected. It has a good stream of running water; is on a good road; about five miles from Comox wharf. This is good, level land and soil; a large portion is alder bottom. Was formerly owned by Joe Rodello.
Section 119—Comox District. One hundred acres fronting on Comox River. This section adjoins 79. All flat river bottom land. A good deal of this land is alder bottoms. This is one of the finest fishing frontages on the river.

Earle & Co.), Victoria, M.P., Merchant; Thomas B. Hall, (Victoria and Montreal, "Mount Royal Milling and Manufacturing Company, Limited), Victoria, Manufacturer; William Wilson, Esq. (W. & J. Wilson), Victoria, Merchant; Henry Young, Esq. (Henry Young & Co.), Victoria, Merchant.

BANKERS—The Bank of British Columbia, Victoria, B.C.
MANAGER—J. Keith Wilson, Esq.

The objects for which the Company is established are:—
1. To invest and lend money at interest on the security of real estate or other property in British Columbia and elsewhere, or any interest therein, including existing mortgages or other securities, also to purchase the bonds or debentures of any Government or Municipal body, or of any incorporated railway company, or other incorporated body.
2. To acquire, hold and sell any such property as aforesaid, purchased as aforesaid, or accepted as security for money advanced by or owing to the Company.
3. To build on, drain, let, farm, develop or otherwise utilize or improve, and generally exercise the rights of owners over any property the Company may lend on or acquire an interest in.
4. To undertake agencies and conduct financial business of any kind in British Columbia or elsewhere.
5. To receive and take money on deposit, or for investment on the guarantee of the Company or otherwise, or to guarantee payment of any money expressed to be secured by any mortgage.
6. To borrow money at interest, and to issue bonds or debentures as security therefor; and
7. To perform all such acts, matters and things as the Company may deem incidental or otherwise conducive to the attainment of any of the above objects, or to the conversion or disposition of any security or property held by the Company.

The organization of the Company is the result of the consideration by its promoters of the subject of Insurance, which now permeates nearly every class of mercantile business. When considering the subject it occurred to them that if the principle of Insurance in the form of a satisfactory guarantee for the due payment of interest at a rate to be agreed upon and against loss of principal, were to be applied to the ordinary investment of money on securities, a large percentage of capital now on deposit at low rates of interest in the savings banks and other depositories, and which is locked up, would be withdrawn and become available for loans on securities, and thus be put in circulation.

With a view of offering such guarantee this Company has been incorporated with a capital of $500,000 (with power to increase), a small instalment only, viz., $10,000, of which has been called up to meet initiatory expenses. The remaining unpaid portion of this capital sum, viz., $490,000, shall form such guarantee to investors with the Company, which it is intended to supplement by the creation of a Reserve Fund, of which the unexpended balance of the capital called up shall form the nucleus.

It is further intended that no calls shall be made in respect to the unpaid capital except to meet liabilities.

The whole of the capital has been subscribed by persons whose position, both financially and socially, is believed to be unquestionable, and by the Articles of Association no person can hold more than 200 shares (representing $10,000), nor will any shareholder be at liberty to have transfer of his shares registered without the sanction of the Directors having been first obtained.

Deposits may be secured by debentures to be issued by the Company or by similar debentures secured by the hypothecation of securities taken by the Company.

Arrangements may be effected with the Company for the guarantee of securities approved by the Company.

THE CHILIAN REBELLION.

The Insurgents Fire on a French Corvette—France Demands an Apology.

VALPARAISO, Chili, July 23.—It would seem as if the Congressional party had got themselves into a very pretty muddle with the French government, if the report just received here can be relied upon. It is to the effect that the warship Esmeralda, so well know in connection with the Itata pursuit, and which with the Amazion, Anconagua and Cochrane, has been threatening to bombard Coquimbo, fired twice on the French corvette Volta near Coquimbo Bay. The French admiral will demand an apology. It is most probable that the insurgents will hasten to make it, as they cannot afford to antagonize so powerful a nation. Intelligence has also been received of the narrow escape from capture of the torpedo cruiser Lynch, after the detection of the plot to destroy her and the Condell in this port by dynamite. She proceeded at once toward Coquimbo, word had been received by Balmaceda that his foes were planning a combined sea and land attack upon that port. The Lynch was relied upon to annoy the Congressional fleet as much as possible, and draw them off the coast. She has evidently carried out her orders to the letter.

Asiatic Cholera in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—A case of alleged Asiatic cholera was discovered in this city to-day, when Madison Thornton, of 2nd street and Girard avenue, died in great agony, after an illness of only a few hours. Dr. H. C. Fulton was called and after a careful diagnosis pronounced it cholera. He then called in Dr. Bruce, who agreed with him. Before any other experts could be called the man died and his body was immediately covered with disinfectants and removed. The Board of Health was notified and Dr. Ford, president of the Board, after a careful note of the symptoms, pronounced it simply cholera morbus, while Chief Medical Inspector Taylor says it is sporadic cholera. Drs. Fulton and Bruce, however, still claim that it is of the Asiatic variety. A post mortem examination will be made to-morrow. Excitement in the neighborhood of Thornton's home runs high.

HOW WOMEN WALK.

About One Out of Twenty-Five Knows How to Lift and Put Down Her Feet.

It's a very easy thing to do, walking, learned so long ago in every woman's youth that she scarcely remembers how or when she was taught to put one foot before the other, how she learned to move with shambling or dignified motions; and so strong upon her is the force of habit long continued that rarely, rarely in later years of girl or young ladyhood, can she be brought to a consciousness of the defects in her carriage, and persuaded to alter them for more graceful movements, as she passes to and fro upon the face of the earth.

Just one out of twenty-five women seen passing down a crowded street knows how to hold her body and how to lift up and set down her feet naturally. This is the result of long observation on the part of the writer, who, moreover, remarks that that one redeeming woman is but a passable walker, says a writer in the Illustrated American.

Now, only that woman who goes in for athletic exercises, or has harkened to long lectures from the dress reformers, ever takes thought as to her daily bearing in public and at home. It is sufficient that she is not hunchbacked or conspicuously ungraceful, and though she dosn't know it, all those long, flowing skirt draperies, from waist to foot, hide for her a multitude of what might almost be deformities—ugly, unpleasing movements, that in a man go under the uncompromising terms of knock-kneed, bow-legged, splay-footed and so on, but in her are hidden, and only obtrude by the uneasy steps, switching skirts and lift of shoulders, by the weak droop of shoulders, undignified bend of the head and poise of arms—all of which go to make up the irregular outlines of an ugly figure.

In those early days, when a toddling baby, much of this unbeautifulness of carriage was learned, nor was it corrected; and as very few women consider more than facial beauty necessary for happiness, they never pause a moment before the mirror and regard attentively the contours of the body, and, walking back and forth, halt to judge whether the motion is regular and full of ease.

FLY-EATING PLANTS.

Some Strange Things Seen in the Gardens at Washington.

"Did you ever see plants that live on flies or mosquitoes? Hearing of them, I took a stroll through the botanical gardens at Washington, and inquired of the superintendent about the truth of the story, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times.

"Oh! yes, we have some such things," he said, "and here is one now." He pointed to a pot containing what seemed to be moss. But in this green mass could be seen tiny shells, like baby clam shells, only they were thin and green and only half open. Along the edges were green hairs like eyelashes.

"You see a fly goes in here," he explained, as he opened the two halves, "and when he gets in the leaves close. Then the fly can't get out. Then he dies and his substance is absorbed by the bad little flower. It grows only in South Carolina.

"Here is what I call the beer saloon," he continued. "You see this is shaped like a pitcher, hangs from a long stem and has a curved lid. Inside is a fluid that intoxicates all insects that drink it. They are then absorbed by the plant. This other one, like a round, hollow tulip stem, is of the same nature.

"Then, here is a big green pitcher plant. Well, frogs climb into this to drink from the fluid at the bottom. But they can't get out, for when they try to a couple of sharp horns in the lid overhead stab them in the back."

Could any one dream that an innocent, fragrant flower could be so heartless? It butchers its victim after luring it into an intoxicating den, and then feeds on the mangled remains.

"This on the board is what we call stag-moss. You see it grows on the side of the house from a clump of brown leaves like a deer's head. From it branch out four large green prongs of loaves exactly like horns. Of all curious plants this about the oddest. These green leaves are spotted with white and you can always trace a face on the outlines, and I call it the caricature plant."

THE CRY OF MILLIONS
OH, MY BACK!
STOP IT NOW,
SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.
I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when glad Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the DRAGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

THE END DRAWS NEAR.

German legends frequently tell of the "were wolf," whose appearance presaged the death of the person to whom its visit was paid. It is evident that the Government at Ottawa has seen the were wolf, and that its life is coming to a close. The grisly form in this instance embodies the spirit of corruption and venality which has so long dominated at the capital, and which has now come forth from its hiding place to announce the approaching dissolution. Some friends of the ministry affect to believe that the crimes which are now being unearthed will not injure it, that a reformation will be effected by cutting off the heads of the underlings and filling the impeached departments with new men. Their hope does not seem to be well founded. They can scarcely persuade the country to accept the dismissal of a few clerks as a sufficient measure of disinfection, for the people will know that the disease is too deep-rooted to be cured by any surface treatment.

It is quite apparent that Sir JOHN THOMPSON, the practical head of the Cabinet, takes a more serious view of the situation than most of his party, and there will be no cause for surprise if he should take either of the courses which Ottawa reports lay out for him. That he is thoroughly disgusted with the exposures already made and discouraged by the prospect of more may well be believed. It is therefore quite likely that he will either drop out of the Cabinet himself, as some reports indicate, or secure an almost entirely new set of colleagues. The latter course is mentioned as the probable one by the Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto World, a paper which extends an earnest support to the Government. According to the same authority, Mr. ABBOTT and Sir JOHN contemplate carrying the process of regeneration further by securing a new parliament, which they fondly hope will be in accord with the reconstructed cabinet. "The leaders, so their near friends say, have, as a first duty, to keep the Reformers out of power, and, next, to reconstruct the Government, and appeal, if necessary, to the country as soon as the lists are revised and the seats redistributed. They are ready to sit until October in order to do that."

This is a very pretty programme, and one which the two leaders may possibly attempt to carry out, but it is hardly necessary to say that there are many difficulties in the way. By "redistribution," of course is meant "gerrymander," and it needs only a recollection of the fight against the measure of 1885 to tell the Ministers how useless it would be to attempt a similar manœuvre now. But supposing they succeed in the initial stages, that they get rid of their objectionable colleagues, that they engineer a gerrymander bill through Parliament, that they contrive to manipulate the voters' lists, how much chance have they then for ultimate success? Impartial observers will say very little. In the first place, they would have to encounter the hostility of the displaced Ministers; the men who are at present busily knifing each other would turn on the devoted leaders. Then, having turned out the present gang, where would Sir JOHN find material for a cabinet which the people could regard with confidence or respect?

It must be remembered further that the Government's want of cleanliness is not its only objectionable feature. Its general policy has become distasteful to a majority of the people, as would most certainly be shown by another general election. When it was on trial last March, it was saved from condemnation by the personal prestige of Sir JOHN MACDONALD and a feeling of commiseration for the Old Man in his declining years, coupled with extraneous considerations which he contrived to drag into the contest. None of these aids would be left to his party in a new election. And besides, the Government's juggling with the reciprocity question will rise up in judgment against it when it again appeals to the people, for the October negotiations at Washington are almost sure to bring it discomfiture, and its humbugging will be exposed most thoroughly.

It may be that THOMPSON and ABBOTT will face all these difficulties, and settle down to their task of "keeping the Reformers out of power," but we are inclined to believe that they will have little hope of success. Whichever way the Tory managers turn, defeat looks them in the face. Whether the respectable members of the Cabinet look out for themselves and leave the evil company they are in, or whether they try the process of reconstruction or whether things go on as they are, there seems to be but one end in sight. The party's outlook is hopeless.

A BAD YEAR FOR CABINET OFFICERS.

This is not a good year for statesmen who are connected with public works departments. The tricks of the trade are leaking out, and the appearance presented by the functionaries connected therewith is not dissimilar to that of common malefactors. The feature of the business, however, which is as extraordinary as the frauds themselves is the brazen cheek of the accused. The revelations thus far at Ottawa show that Sir HECTOR LANGEVIN is either a fool or a knave, and it will not be denied, we suppose, that the former character is as disqualifying for the high office he holds as the latter, yet it is quite clear that he has no intention of stepping down and out of his own volition. He proposes to await, evidently, the propulsive force of the united kick of some five millions of disgusted and indignant Canadians. Coming nearer home we find the same unsatisfactory state of affairs. Nothing is being done in the public interest. A public trust in this province, as in the east, is made to do service as a private "snap." For years it has been common talk in this province that it is impossible to get hold of land unless you were in with the ring. Such a charge should seem to be without foundation. How should it be possible for the Government to have friends enough to buy up all of the valuable land in the Province? Nevertheless, it is indubitable that the public lands have not been open to purchase by everybody, and the situation seems to suggest that if only some local Mr. TARTE should speak there would be a lumbering crash at James Bay.

There can be no question about it, public trusts as administered nowadays are a private snap. The men who have been fortunate enough to secure power have things all their own way, and, after the fashion of TWEED they are brazen enough to enquire what the public is going to do about it. It is putting it pretty strong, but the more we study the governments of the period the more apparent it is that instead of being called governments they should be designated conspiracies, the primary object of which is to plunder the public. Nor is it necessary that the operations of the men who pose as public servants should be exposed to prove it. All that needs to be done to satisfy any inquirer on this point is to study the character of the legislation which is the product of our Legislative Assemblies. Take the Hudson Bay Railway, for instance. What is that but a steal? Coming home, look at our Land Act! This act has nothing to recommend it from beginning to end. Ostensibly got up to prevent land grabbing, it facilitates it, while in clause 17 the Government has reserved to itself a power which virtually makes it a dictator in respect of the right of way for railways. The Government was asked to pass a bill which would enable railway companies to build without the delay and expense incident to procuring a charter from the legislature. The measure was beaten by a solid Government vote. Under clause 17 of the Land Act, which was substituted, the railway company which would enter Victoria must propitiate the Lands and Works Department before it can get right of way. It is not necessary, therefore, to study the true inwardness of Fort Simpson land grabs to arrive at a conclusion as to how the Government of this Province is being administered. It is revealed in the acts of the Government. Our land act is a disgrace to any Government, while as for our truculent Department of Education it is doubtful if it could exist a week outside of British Columbia. And how long is the public going to stand it? Does the public require a TARTE investigation before it will proceed to relegate the local Government to private life or will it be able to satisfy itself of the true conditions of affairs by studying their acts as reflected by legislative enactments?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Chicago Herald: Canadian admirers of Sir JOHN MACDONALD are surprised and shocked to find that the old man owned a comfortable block of stock in the Canadian Pacific. The fact has just come to light through his will. The railroad's existence to-day is in a great measure due to the late premier's influence, and it was in accordance with his advice that the enterprise was subsidized to the extent of $100,000,000. Sir JOHN did well in Canada, but he really should have been a United States senator.

The Colonist attempts a defence of Mr. MCCONNAN's action. We hold, and we are morally certain that the public is with us, that it is Mr. MCCONNAN's plain duty to ascertain why the Education Department manipulated the high school examination. The only course open to him, therefore, was to have assented to the proposal of his colleagues. We would inform Mr. MCCONNAN that this marking of Latin dullards up and this marking of Latin proficients down is not a departmental matter, but a public matter, and that a school trustee who fails to apprehend it in this light is disqualified for the functions he has been appointed to perform. If the Department of Education is ignorant of Latin the public have a right to know it. Let the Government reserve public lands for its favorites if it will, but let it have the decency to see that none but men who thoroughly understand their business are connected with the Department of Education.

In an article on "High Explosives in Warfare," in the latest number of the Naval Institute Proceedings, Commander BARBER states: "I lately had explained to me the details of a system, which is certainly not impossible, for damaging New York from the sea by means of dynamite balloons. The inventor simply proposed to take advantage of the sea breeze which blows toward New York every summer afternoon and evening. Without even coming in sight of land he could locate his vessel in such a position that his balloons would float directly over the city and let fall a ton or two of dynamite by means of a clockworks attachment." Commander BARBER further adds that there seems to be no limit to the possibilities of high explosives when intelligently applied to the warfare of the future, and the advantage will always be on the side of the nation that is prepared to use them.

With the idea of offsetting the "sickening revelations" amongst its friends at Ottawa, the Colonist says: "It is an open secret that the mercenary demands of his followers nearly broke the Hon. ALEX. MACKENZIE'S heart. His refusal to grant his supporters the political favors which they sought was the real cause of his deposition. He was deprived of the leadership of his party by men who hated him because he curtly refused to be a party to political jobbery. The men whom he rebuked, as well as refused, became his most deadly enemies, and they were not satisfied until they, by their open opposition and secret intrigues, had put another man in his place." It is not an open secret or any other kind of a secret that Mr. MACKENZIE was deprived of the leadership of his party" in the way stated by our neighbor. Apart from this misrepresentation, the Colonist makes a grave mistake in alluding to Hon. Mr. MACKENZIE'S honesty and uprightness, for it will naturally lead people to making comparisons between the purity of his administration and the corruption of that which followed. Mr. MACKENZIE, as the Colonist says, would not countenance jobbery; his successor in the premiership not only countenanced but was the father of jobbery. Hence come the "sickening revelations" which our contemporary so much deplores.

WHEN TO GIVE.

The Only Sure Way of Having One's Plans Carried Out.

There died the other day in New York an old merchant, who had been always conspicuous for intelligently directed energy in business and for simplicity of living. He was not put down on the short list of the great millionaires, nor even on that longer one of men who, though not millionaires, were still very wealthy. The modesty of his living had placed him on the list of the fairly well to do. His success in business, his unostentatious life, his high character as a man, a citizen and a merchant, all testified to his good sense, judgment and ability.

When his will was opened, says the Philadelphia Ledger, it was found that he died the possessor of several millions, variously estimated at from six to ten; it was also found that he had devised a very large part of his fortune to a number of colleges, and had done it in the case of each of them in such a free and intelligent manner as to again demonstrate his good sense and sound judgment. He did not, as so many do, make a one-sided ante-mortem bargain with the recipients of his bounty that they should use it in the erection of buildings, or in the endowment of chairs, or in any other way leading to the perpetuation of his name and his charitable disposition. He made no bargain at all with them, but, ordered the various bequests to them to be used as in the judgment of the colleges should to them seem best.

Wise and generous as he was in giving well, he lacked the wisdom of giving timely. Like so many others who have greatly desired that the wealth accumulated by them should go to the helping of the world, he intrusted the work of distribution to executors, instead of doing it himself. The result is the rather common one—his will is contested; is, if possible, to be set aside, and his benevolent purposes are to be defeated.

Had he himself done in life that which he directed his executors to do when he was dead, he would have had the assurance that it was certainly and well done. The great schools, the usefulness of which he desired to increase, would have had their usefulness increased beyond all peradventure, and his light of charity would have so shone before men as to serve as an example and an incentive to others to emulate it. As it is, his purposes of well-doing may all be frustrated, and the millions which he wished should, and which he anticipated would, be employed in extending the beneficial influences of enlightened education, may be spent in costly legal contention, or otherwise less profitably than he who wrought for them intended they should be spent. To give most surely every man should himself give, and give timely, during his own active life, to the end that his designs shall not be set aside.

The Queen will only make one more trip this season, the last one on the schedule having been cancelled.

Cars vs. Carriages.

Shortly before noon to-day one of the street cars collided with a baker wagon on Johnson street, taking off one of the cart wheels, but not through any carelessness of the motorneer. A little boy who had been left in charge of the wagon was trying to get out of the way of the car, which, however, he did not succeed in doing. The boy was thrown out but not hurt. One of the cars also ran into a dog cart without doing any damage.

YOUNG, BARTLETT & Co.

THE TORONTO EXHIBIT.

The Commissioner Before the Council of the Board of Trade—Action Taken.

Mr. R. E. Gosnell, the commissioner appointed by the British Columbia Exhibit Association to take charge of the exhibit at Toronto and other places in the East, explained very fully and clearly to the council of the Board of Trade, the object of the Association. Explanations were also given of the manner in which the exhibit of 1890 had been conducted, Mr. Gosnell claiming that the current apprehensions about its being a Vancouver affair were unfounded. The Province was represented as a whole, the exhibits not being labelled as coming from any particular city or district. In giving information to those seeking it, he had been careful not to speak in the interest of any particular section.

Mr. Renouf pointed out that as Victoria had been invited to contribute to the expenses of the Association, she had a right to expect representation in the Association and an opportunity to take part in its proceedings. Last year, the City Council had contributed $220 and a promise had been made that aid would again be given the Association this year. It was, he thought, advisable to send a large exhibit to Toronto, and Mayor Oppenheimer and the people af Vancouver deserved credit for the interest they had shown in the matter. At the same time he did not think that sufficient time had been given to Victoria last year by the commissioner, who only spent 48 hours here.

Mr. Gosnell explained that his time last year was very limited, his appointment having been made only 10 days before the date on which the articles to be sent to Toronto had to leave Vancouver. He gave two or three days to Victoria, one to Westminster and one each to the several rural sections in Westminster district. Victoria did not send anything, but he had procured a large number of photographic views of the city and had placed them on exhibition. The other portions of the Province had the same grievance as Victoria in respect to the limited time spent in making the arrangements. This complaint would not be possible this year.

That after the satisfactory explanation of Mr. Gosnell, the council is of opinion that it is in the interests of Victoria and the district that the city council with a view of having exhibits, agricultural and manufactures, of the city and district, collected and forwarded to the Provincial Exhibit Association; the collection to be under the auspices of the city council of Victoria.

IN GHOSTLY ATTIRE.

His Satanic Majesty Performs for the Benefit of two Travelers.

Several travelers for Eastern houses arrived in this city recently and were accommodated at one of the principal hotels. During the warm weather two of the number imbibed rather freely and spent nearly all the money in their possession. Their friends took charge of them and one evening placed them in bed. Their clothing was covered with dust and to give the young men a respectable appearance when they recovered from their drunken stupor, the good samaritans carried off all their belongings to a tailor. They also locked the young fellows in their room. On the following morning a barber was secured and with the clean clothes in a basket the party proceeded to the rooms of the young inebriates. They were astonished when they found the room doors open and the beds unoccupied. A rush was made for the windows and several pairs of eyes gazed into the yard below in quest of the mangled remains of their comrades. Fortunately they discovered nothing and a systematic search through the hotel resulted as follows: Two sheets gone from the beds, two high silk hats missing from the hat rack. The search party were confident that the young men owned but one suit of clothes each and that the full wardrobe was in their possession, commenced a search through the city for the missing men. Several pedestrians informed the searchers that in the early morning they were frightened by two ghosts dressed in proverbial white. The figures passed along Douglas street in a noiseless way and entered doorways and alleys when seen from a distance. They had smokestacks on their heads which emitted sparks and smoke. A night watchman affirmed that he met two aristocratic ghosts wearing high silk hats. The burly watchman stated that he was not afraid of a dozen burglars but he did not consider it a part of his duty to wrestle with ghosts. His terrier dog was killing rats at the time in a back alley and he considered it advisable to let visitors from another world have a look at the beauties of Victoria without molestation. A further search resulted in locating the men in a building on a side street near James Bay. The party sent for the clothing belonging to the men and sent them to an adjoining to exchange their sheets and silk hats for something more becoming two wise men from the east. They forgot to return and an open window revealed the fact that they had again made their escape. Another search was instituted which resulted in discovering them in a saloon. In this place another surprise awaited the searchers. A frequenter was playing "Annie Rooney" on an instrument called the harmonica. The instrument resembled two rows of teeth and was moved from one side of the musician's mouth to the other. The performer was a colored man and the two drunken men imagined that His Satanic Majesty was after them. They both jumped through a large pane of glass and were running along the street when their companions captured them again. After interviewing a doctor the young men were again placed in bed and a strong man was engaged to watch them. Their spree is over and the sticking plaster on their youthful faces is a sad reminder of the morning they jumped through a window to escape from the colored harmonica player.

TRUSTEE M'CONNAN.

TO THE EDITOR:—Who does not remember the circumstances that first brought Mr. McConnan out of obscurity? Clergymen in the pulpit had made corporal punishment the theme of their edifying discourses; trustees had held an open and impartial investigation, and a prominent minister of the crown had been busy in circulating tales that he knew to be false and injurious to some of the public school teachers of Victoria. It was then that Mr. McConnan appeared on the scene and offered himself as a candidate for the vacant position of school trustee, stating that his object was to have a full investigation into the truth of the charges made against the teachers. Was not this a raking up of "old sores"? How is it that Mr. McConnan was at that time anxious to rake up old sores when the reputation of teachers was affected and now objects to an investigation when the integrity of the officials of the Education office is called in question? Undoubtedly Mr. McConnan is one of our honorable men. ADAM ANDEVE.

COLONEL OF THE FOURTH.

A STORY OF THE WAR OF THE REVOLUTION.

By Bernard Bigby, Author of "Loyal at Last," "My Lady Fantastic," "Ellen's Great Secret," "Fell Among Thieves," Etc., Etc.

So, in accordance with this liberal order, a dozen men, heavily armed, with Besant at their head, stole out of camp that night under shadow of the cedar-brakes that lined the river.

To return to the object of all this solicitude, Charlie Fulton's condition after the battle of Murfreesboro was a strong contrast to the gentle treatment he had received during his confinement at the recruiting station, and he was now beginning to learn that the lot of a prisoner of war was not a very enviable one. Torn from his associates, who, being gentlemen, had accorded him many little kindnesses, he found himself in the hands of a rough soldiery, who seemed to take delight in covering with indignities their luckless prisoner. One snatched the cap from his head with the brutal declaration that it was too good to cover a Yank's brainless scalp; another requisitioned his boots and gave him in return a pair of soleless shoes a tramp would scorn to wear; a third appropriated his watch; and a fourth took a fancy to a ring he wore. Thus despoiled he was hustled into the loft of an unoccupied mill, where he was cheerfully told to make himself at home till morning, when he would be taken "in the rack of captured Yanks to the pen."

But sharp as the eyes of his captors were they were not sufficiently on the alert to prevent a stolen interview with the old colored man they had deputed to carry him a few moldy rolls and a cup of villainous coffee they called his dinner.

How anxiously the slow hours rolled along. Would midnight never come? Perhaps the ancient darky had fooled him, or failed in his attempt to reach the Union lines; or, worst thought of all, was the probability that his folly had been discovered and his comrades might not think him worth the rescue.

Below the men who had purloined a small keg of whisky were getting quarrelsome over their cups. Now was the time to strike; if only Frank and his gallant boys would come; but, though he pressed his ear against a crack in the wooden wall and listened with breathless anxiety, there was no sound without save the moan of the wind and the fierce pattering of the sleety rain.

But what is that? The hoarse challenge of the sentry, followed by a groan—and all is still again. The revelers below had never even heard the sound, for their oaths and shouts were louder than ever. Then the crash of wood, and stamping and scuffling, and again the painful silence. He rushed to the door and beat upon it with his naked hand, fearful that after all they might not find him.

"Charlie!"

"Frank!"

The lock fell shattered by a blow, the door swung open, and with hysteric

THE LOCK FELL SHATTERED BY A BLOW.

joy Fulton clasped the hand of his deliverer.

"Quick, my boy," Besant cried. "One fellow got away and will give the alarm. It will be all we can do to get back to camp with whole skins to-night."

They were not a bit too soon, for as they reached the opposite bank of the river they heard the clatter of galloping horses on the Murfreesboro road.

"Are any of our fellows injured?" Charlie asked, anxiously.

"Not a scratch. We just bowled them over like nine-pins," was the gay reply.

It was not till they had reached a place of safety and the sound of their pursuers had died away in the distance that Besant remembered the unpleasant task which lay before him of telling Charlie of his father's sad misfortune.

The young man's eyes filled with tears as he heard the melancholy details.

"Poor old dad," he moaned. "Wounded so bad as that, and I not near to comfort him. Ah! what will mother say, I wonder, when she hears that I was away from him in his hour of need? Away! my God! and on such an errand!"

"Which she never need know—and if she did, the knowledge of your safe return would condone the fault of your going, Charlie: for women do not look at some things in the same light that men do."

"As you do, for instance?"

"Yes, Charlie, as I do," Frank declared, firmly. "I am not going to add to your troubles by preaching you a sermon; but if I have any claim on your regard, I would implore you to make a confidant of Major Hopkins, who knows more of your doings than you have any idea of, and who is still willing to be your friend."

"You speak with an assumption of guilt on my part, which in another man I would not permit one instant."

"No, not guilt, Charlie; only intensely reckless folly," Besant declared.

"And I am to make this paragon of a Major my father-confessor? Well, perhaps I will see him to-morrow and have a talk with him."

"You will see him to-night; for you will have to report to him. He is in command now, you know."

"In command? Since when?"

"Since your father fell in action."

"Ah, yes; of course."

For a time they walked on in silence; but as they reached the Major's tent, Fulton asked: "Does my father know why I left the camp that night?"

"No. The secret is only shared between the Major and myself—unless you count Jim Lawson as one of us; but he is beyond the power of revelation."

"As how?"

"Deserted to the enemy."

"The scoundrel!" Then, after a pause: "Oh, Frank; I do believe you are the best-hearted fellow that ever drew the breath of life."

"And the Major?"

"Yes, yes; if it will set your honest soul at rest, I will make a clean breast of all my sins to him this very night."

And with that pleasing assurance the young men parted.

Next day, as the doctors declared that there was no hopes of Colonel Fulton ever being able to assume the command of a marching regiment, even if he escaped with his life, Hopkins was installed as Colonel, to the satisfaction of every man in the ranks; for they had long learned to love the quiet, gentlemanly man, who never flinched from danger and had such a keen sense of duty.

And who is going to be Major? was the question at the bivouac.

"I'll bet even on Besant against the field," cried Jack Gregory.

But there were no takers.

"WHY IS THIS THUSLY"

BETWEEN THE WATER AND FIRE DEPARTMENTS?

The Ballot for the Police Magistracy Divided Between Messrs. Richards and Belyea—The City and the Provincial Exhibit—School and other Matters.

Last evening's regular weekly council meeting was attended by the usual cipher representing the public. The confidence of that body in their civic representatives is absolute, and there is little or no influence brought to bear on their actions except when there is some office to be disposed of. Then the attendance and interest of that portion of the public more particularly interested are very marked.

There were present His Worship the Mayor, presiding, Ald. A. J. Smith, J. Coughlin, W. D. McKillican, J. Robertson, F. G. Richards, Joseph Hunter, Joshua Holland, E. Renouf and H. A. Munn.

The opening of the session was marked by the regular inclination to discuss technicalities.

THE COUNCIL'S CORRESPONDENCE.

The first letter read by the clerk was as follows, from Hon. J. H. Turner, provincial minister of finance:

To John Grant, Esq., Mayor of Victoria:

DEAR SIR,—The executive council having under consideration communications from the cities of Vancouver, New Westminster and Nanaimo in reference to a refund of a portion of the provincial revenue tax collected by the Government for the six months ended 30th June consequent to a recent change in the School Act. I have the honor to inform you that with a view to meeting generally the several corporations affected by the requirements of the act, it has been decided to make an equitable adjustment of this tax on the 31st December, 1891, by a refund to each city mentioned in the act of one-half of the respective amounts collected by the Government for the six months ended June 30th, less one half of the sum which may be collected by said respective corporations for the six months ended December 31, 1891, thereby entitling each city to one-half of the total amount collected within its limits for the present calendar year.

I may, however, mention that this is not to be considered an anticipated offset to the amount paid by the Government for the portions of teachers salaries to 30th June, 1891, which is now due. I have the honor, etc.,

J. H. TURNER.

Ald. Renouf moved that the communication be received and spread on the minutes, which was seconded by Ald. Munn and carried.

Ald. Richards thought that as the Government had received this money, and as the city had no funds to carry on the schools for the next six months some application should be made for this purpose. The city would require by the 31st December next the sum of $6500, and there is at present no provision made for that. According to the act the trustees cannot make any application to the council until the end of the six months ending December 31st.

Cornelius J. Soule wrote requesting permission to excavate for a building on on Douglas street, also to move a house on Douglas street.—Both requests were granted.

James Samuel James wrote asking to be allowed to cure the lepers, although he had not a regular medical degree.—The letter was referred to the sanitary officer.

J. Dobinson wrote complaining of hawks, and asking leave to shoot them on his own premises.—Referred to the police committee.

John T. Jones offered his services as caretaker of the market building when completed.—Laid on the table.

T. Elworthy, secretary, submitted the resolution passed by the Board of Trade with reference to the city's part in the provincial exhibit at Toronto.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBIT.

R. E. Gosnell wrote as follows: It is the intention of the Provincial Exhibit Association to make a very large display of British Columbia products at Toronto and other eastern fairs, and in behalf of the association I would ask for your assistance and co-operation in the matter. Victoria and Vancouver Island have the elements of which a very fine display could be made, and we are anxious that all parts of the province should be well represented. I would suggest that in addition to financial assistance, you should appoint a committee for the purpose of making arrangements, and as I shall be in the city for a day or so I could go fully into details with its members and get the work well under way. Any explanations you may desire I would be pleased to make. I have already discussed the subject with one or two of your members and members of the Board of Trade, and I think to their satisfaction.

Ald. Renouf thought the suggestions of Mr. Gosnell should be adopted. Okanagon, Vancouver and New Westminster had done this, and to be able to do Victoria justice, a local committee should be appointed by his worship to act in this matter. He thought it would be well to send a man with this exhibit to supply information regarding this locality. He moved that the letter be received; also that the committee be named to confer with Mr. Gosnell, with power to act.

His Worship appointed Ald. Renouf, Hunter and Munn as the committee.

John Hall wrote complaining of insufficient water supply.—Referred to the water committee.

Amor De Cosmos wrote with further reference to the Victoria-Saanich railway proposition made to the council on May 4th last, and asking for an early interview with the council on the subject.

Ald. Coughlan suggested the appointment of a railroad committee, and Ald. Renouf was of opinion that a special meeting might be held at which the promoters of this scheme might be present.

The Mayor pointed out that there was already a committee on this subject, and the communication was referred to that committee.

Friday evening was decided upon as the time that committee should meet.

W. A. Robertson called the attention of the council to the bad state of the sidewalk on a portion of Chatham street.—Referred to the street committee with power to act.

Charles. Kent, City Treasurer, informed the council that he would not have the duty of selling lands for taxes this year, as he had succeeded in collecting all arrears to December 31, 1888, a grand showing for Victoria and probably unequalled by any other city on the coast.

The letter was ordered to be spread on the minutes.

The request of W. P. Lindley, secretary of the firemen's tournament, for the use of the city hall on September, was granted.

John M. Muir protested against the establishment of a crematoty on Clover Point.—Tabled.

J. Stewart Yates wrote a letter containing Mr. Yates' refusal to part with his property on the Gorge for park purposes.

Ald. Munn would like to know whether the council would go any further in this direction, and it was the opinion that the committee might look round for a desirable spot.

M. Young and H. E. Levi wrote, handing over to the city the park flag, which was received with a vote of thanks to these gentlemen.

Hon. Theo. Davie, Attorney-General, wrote apprising the council that the name of Mr. Belyea had been placed on the rolls of Justices of the Peace.

THE CITY'S SANITARY CONDITION.

Sanitary officer Bailley reported on the sanitary condition of the city as follows:

I have been notified by the Chinese (gardners) that they will not allow any more night soil to be deposited on their premises. There must be some place found to put night soil immediately, and for good reason—both Dougherty and Hauson refuse positively to remove any night soil until the city provide a place to put it. As regards street sprinkling we are put to much inconvenience by not having full power to use any hydrant for the purpose of filling our carts. In case of flushing our drains we are required to make application to the water commissioner before we can acquire any water for flushing until past six o'clock p.m., and between 4 and 5 a.m.

Eberts & Taylor enclosed draft of district telegraph by-law.

Ald. F. G. Richards moved the following resolution: That all fire hydrants be placed in the hands of the fire department, that the chief engineer of the fire department report any defect in the working of any of the hydrants to the water commissioners immediately upon discovering same, and that the water works department point out to the chief engineer of the fire department the position of all valves in connection with the hydrants.

He thought this a necessary move. While we must admit that there should be a head to the water department, it was quite as necessary that the head of the fire department should know the location and state of the hydrants. If the instructions of the water commissioner are carried out it will be utterly impossible for the fire department to know whether the hydrants are in proper order. If the water commissioner is to control both fire and water departments, who is to be responsible in case of fire? Ald. Richards maintained that the hydrants should be under the control of the chief of the fire department. The cost of these hydrants had been charged to the fire department and it was necessary that they should be examined by the officers of that department, and seen to be in proper repair. Who is to be responsible for these hydrants in the winter time. If there was any wilful waste of water by the fire department the water commissioner would be justified in his course, but there has not, and therefore the water commissioner had no right to assume charge of the hydrants.

Ald. Coughlin said that the order merely stated that the chief engineer should notify the water commissioner when the hydrants were required for any purpose other than fire. There was no hardship worked by the order. The commissioner was perfectly within the act and the provisions of the act should be carried out.

Ald. Hunter thought that the water commissioner should have full power and authority over the water supply of this city.

Ald. Smith asked "why is this thusly?" He said it was by the water commissioner's special request the hydrants were handed over to the fire department last year. He didn't see what the present trouble was about and why the hydrants should be handed over to the commissioner again. The chief engineer cannot tell whether a hydrant is in good condition unless he tests it.

Ald Munn had no doubt that the commissioner was actuated by a desire to maintain the efficiency of the water department, but it was just as necessary to maintain the efficiency of the fire department, and he did not see how this could be done if restrictions of this kind are placed on the department. Ald. Munn was of opinion that the chief should at all times be at liberty to test the hydrants.

Ald. McKillican said it was at present under consideration by the water department to appoint a man to look after and test the hydrants.

Ald. Robertson, who seconded the motion of Ald. Richards, wanted to know whether it was the intention of the Council to take from the fire department the full charge of the hydrants, because that would never do.

Ald. Coughlan said there seemed to be an impression that the order would reduce the efficiency of the fire department. It was only asked that the fire department notify the water department when the former wanted to use the hydrants for other than fire purposes. In cases of fire the fire department had full control of the water supply. Ald. Richards wanted to give the fire department full control of the water supply and let the commissioner sit and look on.

BY-LAWS.

The following by-laws were passed through their respective stages.—The Gravel Pits sale by-law; the District Telegraph by-law.

In the latter Ald Smith made an effort for an underground wire system. He would have the promoters of this company put the wires underground before he would vote for the by-law. At the present time there can be found in some places two or three poles close together. At this rate the city would soon be all poles.

Ald. Robertson was of the same opinion, and Ald. McKillican held that the city should take this matter into serious consideration in view of the fact that the promoters asked for the use of the streets for 50 years.

The sanitary committee reported on the cost of building a crematory, three plans of which, with estimates, were submitted, with accounts of their working in other centres.—The report was adopted.

The market committee reported that the new building would be ready for occupation by November. The committee considered it premature to fix the scale of prices for stalls.

Ald. Holland moved that the sanitary officer be empowered to draw water from the hydrants. He did not believe in the water commissioner dictating to every officer of the board.

This point met with the same discussion as that on the fire department and led to a complete reopening of the former discussion.

The resolution was finally withdrawn.

It was moved by Ald. Holland that Mr. Alfred Carter be appointed to collect the balance of the Provincial Revenue tax at a commission of 25 per cent.—Carried.

Ald. Renouf moved that the city barristers inform the city how the cases stand between the city and the Union Club and the Law Society.—Carried.

Ald. Robertson moved that Hon. A. N. Richards, Q.C., be appointed police magistrate.

Ald. Holland nominated Mr. A. L. Belyea for that position.

The ballot resulted in Richards 5 votes, Belyea 5 votes.

Another ballot was spread and resulted in Richards 5 votes, Belyea 5 votes.

On motion the further balloting was deferred for one week.

In the motion to adopt the report of the streets committee, which made several recommendations, the question of street sprinkling was again broached.

When matters of expenditure are brought forward Ald. Smith rides admirably ex-Ald. Harrison's old horse "street work," which suffers at the expense of everything else. "Street Work" depends on charity for his existence.

The council rose at 11:30 o'clock.

A Nationalist Plan.

A proposal, which would obtain favor with even the opponents of nationalism, contemplates the placing of a supply sufficient for each family of nature's great dyspepsia specific and blood purifier, B.B.B., in every home in the land. The benefits of such a boon to the people would be incalculable.

Frightened the Board of Trade.

CHICAGO, July 23.—A man supposed to be insane pushed his way into the Board of Trade a little before noon today and fired three shots into the crowd. He evidently had no intention of killing anyone in particular as he fired recklessly. The shooting caused intense excitement for a time, till it was discovered that no one was hurt. The man was arrested and taken to the Central Station.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Sarsaparilla. It had Hood's Sarsaparilla cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."
